

Symposium: Big Data and Precision Medicine

Saturday November 15th 2014
Science Show Theatre, Glasgow Science Centre

10.00 Coffee available in the area outside the Science Show Theatre

10.30 Professor Anna Dominiczak (Regius Professor of Medicine, University of Glasgow)
Introduction to Stratified/Precision Medicine and to the “Stratified Medicine Scotland Innovation Centre” at the new South Glasgow Hospitals Campus

10.55 Professor Jill Pell (Professor of Public Health, University of Glasgow)
Using Big Data for Health Research

11.20 Dr. David Sibbald (Aridhia Informatics)
Future developments in personalised medicine and the role of the commercial sector

11.45 Professor Sean Grimmond (Professor of Medical Genomics, University of Glasgow)
Decoding cancer and taking the guess work out of chemotherapy

12.10 Further Questions and General Discussion

12.30 End of the Symposium

The chair of the Symposium is Professor John Coggins (Emeritus Professor of Molecular Enzymology, University Glasgow and Member of the Society of Biology Council).

The speakers' slides will be made available after the symposium on <https://www.societyofbiology.org/regional-activity/scotland/reports>